CONTEST MECHANICS

Description: Alpha Touch is a competition wherein blind-folded players touch the surface of some hard paper to identify the characters engraved or cut within it. The characters are the letters in the Arabic alphabet taught to young learners in public and private schools for them to be able to read images using the Arabic language, the eleventh-most-spoken language even in the United States. The English language is known to have borrowed many Arabic words, some directly but most through some other media; examples of them are admiral, adobe, alchemy, alcohol, algebra, algorithm, alkaline, almanac, amber, arsenal, assassin, candy, carat, cipher, coffee, cotton, ghou, hazard, jar, kismet, lemon, loofah, magazine, mattress, sherbet, sofa, sumac, tariff, and many others. If many wonder why the name, it is maybe because Alpha means first, and Touch means the players have to feel the characters to be able to identify them. Alpha Touch after all in a wider scale of the word in the modern world is a huge digital system that enables light, sounds, and communications work with just one touch of a part in the modern device. Simply a basic perception style, this Alpha Touch that DepED has today may also develop into something very complex when learners' language abilities make them better prepared to understand the world they live in.

The main purpose behind the multiple loud pronouncements of Adhan in every mosque is to make available to everyone an easily intelligible summary of Islamic belief. It is intended to bring to the mind of every believer and non-believer the substance of Islamic beliefs, or its spiritual ideology.
