SUBJECT: PSA Issued Copy and NSO Issued Copy of Birth Certificate is The Same

Dear Dir. Farnazo:

This pertains to the Civil Registry documents specifically the Birth Certificate required by the Department of Education (DepEd) upon enrollment or graduation of students in different schools and divisions in Region 10 (Northern Mindanao Region).

It was noticed that parents were requesting a PSA issued or authenticated copy of birth certificate of their children while in fact they already have a copy on hand issued by then National Statistics Office (NSO).

May we inform that the birth certificate issued by the NSO is the same as the birth certificate issued now by the Philippine Statistics Authority (PSA). The birth certificate issued by this office has no expiration. Hence, it can be used for any legal purposes and reference. Thus, the NSO copy of birth certificate can be used for purposes of enrollment or graduation and no need to require the parents/students to secure a new one if they still have the original copy of the document with them.

We would like to inform further that the National Statistics Office (NSO) is one of the four (4) agencies that were merged and created the Philippine Statistics Authority under the Republic Act No. 10625.

We do hope that you can disseminate this information to all your Schools Division Superintendent (SDS) and teachers and to the parents/students as well.

Thank you very much.

Very truly yours,
